HOT WORDS EXPUNGED

Investigation of New York Life Again Postponed.

Treasurer A. J. Campbell as Insurance Commissioner yesterday afternoon gave another hearing of the matter of John Ena's policy for $25,000 in the New York Life Insurance Co. Little was done beyond continuing the inquiry to December 21, at 1:30 p. m. This was at the request of counsel for the respondent, George E. Smithies, Deputy Commissioner, was in attendance with the documents in the case. M. F. Prosser represented the Attorney General's Department. Z. K. Myers of the Hawaiian Trust Co., Mr. Ena's business agent, was present with S. M. Ballou as counsel, and F. A. Wickett, local agent of the New York Life, with A. F. Judd as counsel.

A letter from Ballou & Marx to Jas. H. Mackintosh, general solicitor of the legal department, N. Y. L. I. Co., New York, dated October 30, 1905, was introduced. It acknowledged the receipt of a letter of the 12th of that month, enclosing:

1. Copy of policy issued to John Ena for $25,000, endorsed as a copy of the original.
2. Another copy bearing the same number endorsed as a copy of the proposed substitution of policy.
3. Copies of a batch of letters.
4. Typewritten application for a new policy, marked by Hawaiian Trust Co. as "referred to our attorneys, Ballou & Marx."

Then there was a letter from Hawaiian Trust Co. to Commissioner Campbell containing further data at the suggestion of Ballou & Marx.

Another letter submitted was from Mr. Wickett to W. M. Harris, Inspector of Agencies, San Francisco, dated October 30, 1905, which among other things stated that the Attorney Gen-

Are these People Fools?

Three of five persons today look upon the world through glass.

Do they wear glasses for "style," for "looks," for "fun?"

Are all these people fools?—would they continue to wear them unless deriving great benefit therefrom? Properly adjusted glasses are today a panacea for many of the so-called chronic diseases which medicines have failed to benefit.

But don't get the idea that glasses CURE anybody or anything. Nature does the curing. Glasses simply stop nerve-leakage, allowing Nature to resume her normal way in the performance of natural functions.

Our business is the scientific adjustment of glasses for the improvement of vision and the stoppage of nerve drain and strain.

eral had stipulated that the original policy must be produced or, if it was lost, that an explanation satisfactory to Commissioner Campbell should be made regarding the document.

Some questions were asked back and forth, when Mr. Myers, in answer to Mr. Prosser, said his statement was all in the shape of letters as presented.

"You have no more to say at this time?" Mr. Campbell asked.

"Only to answer statements made here to the effect that the whole thing is spite work," was the reply.

"If the Commissioner please," Mr. Judd at once interjected, "I will ask to withdraw the letters for the purpose of expunging therefrom everything that is not material to this investigation. We would like to exclude anything that does not pertain to this particular policy."

Mr. Ballou then took a letter from the table and, after showing it to Mr. Judd, marked with brackets a passage deemed objectionable.

Mr. Judd then moved, "at the request of the representative of the New York Life," that the passage objected to by opposite counsel be expunged. It was so ordered.

Mr. Myers, answering Mr. Prosser, said Mr. Ena had no policy in the Prudential and had never applied for one.

Mr. Ballou added that it had never been suggested to Mr. Ena to take out a policy in another company or to change his policy.

Mr. Myers could not say whether he had written a letter in answer to one from Mr. Ena. He went to see him and had a long talk with him at his house, Mr. Ena being home sick at the time.

Mr. Judd's request for a continuance was made because he had been retained only a day or two ago, and desired time to write to New York and receive an answer.

The Commissioner granted the request as above stated.

CHE-FA EXPERT MAKES THINGS CLEAR

A che-fa expert was qualifying last Saturday in the police court before Judge Whitney. The man, a Chinaman, explained the workings of che-fa in his own way, and rather mysterious to an outsider, and spoke about as follows of his knowledge of the intricacies of the gambling game:

"You buy a word. You go to the agent with your ticket and the agent gives you your ticket. You say to the agent, 'I want 50, che-fa.' The agent writes the che-fa. You write the che-fa and give it to the agent and the agent writes the che-fa and gives it to you and you pay the agent and the agent pays the bank and the player pays the agent and the bank pays the agent and—"

"You must know the agent and the agent must know the bank, because if you don't know the agent the agent don't know the bank and the bank don't know you, and if you can't know the bank you can't get your money. To my own knowledge this is so. I have acted as agent. I didn't know the bank and the player knew me, but he didn't know the bank. He knew me, but I don't know him and that if the way the game is played. What I said was that the player didn't pay the bank. You pay the agent and the bank pays the agent. You give the ticket to the agent and the agent keeps the ticket and the agent gives you the ticket and the agent gives you the ticket and the agent keeps the ticket and the bank keeps the ticket."

"Much money is lost and won by the player and by the agent and by the bank because the bank has to pay the agent and the agent has to pay the player, because the player has paid the bank already."

In other words, this "expert" squared the circle, or, to be more exact, was like the serpent which swallowed its tail.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

meetings every two months. Mr. Berndt felt that better results would be obtained by more frequent meetings.

E. E. Paxton said that frequent meetings in theory were all right, but in practice they were not. He considered it a wise thing to delegate the detail work to the trustees. He said this was a community of meetings, and business is largely done through meetings. He favored the compromise.

Mr. Bowen considered that the trustees had done excellent work. He thought, however, that in view of the sentiment for more frequent meetings, the compromise was a good measure. He wondered sometimes what has made the apparent interest in the work of the Merchants' Association. He had seen well-attended meetings there. However, as long as the trustees have gone into the matter, he thought the Chamber could support their compromise measure.

Mr. Swanzy stated that his recollection of monthly meetings was that a quorum could seldom be obtained, and it was almost impossible, therefore, to transact any business. That brought about the Board of Trustees to handle important matters to report to the full Chamber every quarter.

On this showing Mr. Morgan moved the passage of the compromise measure, seconded by Mr. Cartwright, which passed unanimously.

H. P. Wood, secretary of the Promotion Committee, was present, and was introduced to the members by Mr. Bowen.
